Arts and Culture Means Business in the City of Red Wing

New Study Shows Strong Impact of Nonprofit Arts and Culture on Red Wing's Economy

SAINT PAUL, MN: We have known for a long time that the arts and culture are important to Red Wing. They enhance our quality of life, bring diverse communities together and make our area a magnet for jobs and businesses. A new study was released today by the City of Red Wing and Minnesota Citizens for the Arts that shows that, in addition to contributing to our state's excellent quality of life, the nonprofit arts and culture sector is also a substantial industry in Red Wing, generating over $2.2 million in total economic impact annually.

As the most comprehensive report ever done of the creative sector, Creative Minnesota is a new effort to fill the gaps in available information about Minnesota's cultural field and to improve our understanding of its importance to our quality of life and economy. Today's report release is the second wave of a concentrated effort to collect and report data on the creative sector every two years for analysis, education and advocacy, this time including in-depth analysis of seventeen Minnesota cities and counties. All of the research developed by the Creative Minnesota team is available at creativemn.org.

Nine local organizations are part of the study:

- Universal Music Center
- Anderson Center for Interdisciplinary Studies
- City of Red Wing arts and culture programs
- Goodhue County Historical Society
- Picaresque II
- Red Dragonfly Press
- Red Wing Arts Association
- SoundStrings
- Sheldon Theatre of Performing Arts

Creative Minnesota: The Impact and Health of the Nonprofit Arts and Culture Sector found that these nine nonprofit arts and culture organizations in Red Wing support the equivalent of 66 full time jobs in the city, and that 41,094 people attend nonprofit arts and cultural events here annually.

Sheila Smith, Executive Director of Minnesota Citizens for the Arts, said “Clearly Red Wing’s arts and culture organizations are bringing people to town who wouldn’t otherwise be there to spend their money in local businesses. There is something special going on in Red Wing.”

“Red Wing has long understood both the economic and human impact of the arts, and has actively nurtured an environment that supports a diversity of creative activity integrated into all aspects of city life,” said Bonnie Schock, Executive Director of Sheldon Theatre of Performing Arts. “As home to historic arts-based businesses, a diversity of nonprofit arts institutions, as well as arts festivals, events, and happenings all throughout the year; the arts are an essential factor in generating tourism, attracting and retaining business, and knitting the community of Red Wing together.”

“The arts are founded in creativity. Creative thinking leads to positive diversity. Diversity leads to new, unique and ancillary business plans, shops, divisions, privately owned enterprises and ultimately an increase in commerce,” said Mike Arturi, Executive Director and Founder of the Universal Music Center. “The population of Red Wing historically understands, appreciates and encourages the creative growth of its business environment.”

Creative Minnesota was developed by a collaborative of arts and culture funders in partnership with Minnesota Citizens for the Arts (MCA). The report leverages new in-depth research made possible because of Minnesota’s participation in the Cultural Data Project (culturaldata.org). The first round of studies, released in February 2015, looked at the state’s eleven arts regions and at the state as a whole. This round is about cities and counties. Creative Minnesota is a snapshot of the health and impact of nonprofit arts and culture organizations’ budgets in 2013 and looks at their spending and their audiences as well as other indicators.

“We hope that arts advocates, legislators, local government officials and arts and cultural organizations will use this report to find new ways to improve their lives and economies with arts and culture,” said Smith.

The Creative Minnesota team includes Minnesota Citizens for the Arts, The McKnight Foundation, the Minnesota State Arts Board, the Forum of Regions of Minnesota, Target, Bush Foundation, Mardag Foundation, and Jerome Foundation, with in-kind support from the Minnesota Historical Society and others.

The local study was sponsored by the City of Red Wing, Sheldon Theatre of Performing Arts, Red Wing Port Authority, Anderson Center for Interdisciplinary Studies and the Red Wing Arts Association.

Kate Wolford, President of The McKnight Foundation said, “Like other entrepreneurs and small business owners, artists add significant economic and creative value across the entire state. Backed by hard data, Creative Minnesota reveals important truths about how our state’s artists and arts and culture organizations are making dynamic contributions to our economic vitality and to our high quality of life.”

Notes on the Cultural Data Project and other Sources:

This research was made possible by the state's participation in the Cultural Data Project, www.culturaldata.org/ which is a web-based data system utilized by arts and culture grant makers in thirteen states and the District of Columbia. Many public and private grant makers in Minnesota require some or all of their arts and culture grantees to submit data to the CDP. Most CDP data is financial, though it includes information about services provided, numbers of participants, staffing and volunteers as well. CDP data in this report is from 298 arts nonprofits as they reported it to the CDP.

The CDP data was supplemented by the responses of 396 arts and culture nonprofits to a brief online financial survey and by 575 organization's grantee data provided by the Minnesota State Arts Board, Regions and the Minnesota Historical Society. In addition, 3410 audience members completed a survey at arts and culture events around the state. Additional information came from the National Endowment for the Arts, the Tourism Marketing Council, Explore Minnesota, the Minnesota Department of Education and others.

Americans for the Arts (AFTA) was commissioned to calculate the economic impact research portion of this report as part of Arts & Economic Prosperity® IV: The Economic Impact of Nonprofit Arts and Culture Organizations and Their Audiences in the State of Minnesota, Americans for the Arts, 2014 and the associated eleven regional Minnesota studies, which can be downloaded at creativemn.org. Additional data analysis was done by CliftonLarsonAllen using the data sources cited above.

The Legacy Amendment

The Legacy Amendment was passed by a statewide vote of the people of Minnesota in 2008 to dedicate a portion of the state's sales tax to create four new funds for 1. land conservation, 2. water conservation, 3. parks and trails, and 4. arts and culture. The legislature appropriates the dollars from the Legacy Arts and Culture Fund to the Minnesota State Arts Board, Regions, Minnesota Historical Society and other entities to provide access to the arts and culture for all Minnesotans.
